Architecture:

2. The significance of this house lies in its rare plan (double pile, hall and parlor plan type), in the intact interior woodwork (a rare, open corner staircase, Federal style mantels and chair rails) and in the exterior details that are reminiscent of eighteenth century work (double and triple shouldered chimneys, segmental headed basement openings, several surviving 9 over 9 pane windows and molded, cyma curve brick cornices). The highly competent Greek Revival frame addition adds to the architectural significance of the house.
